MAYOR CALLS COUNCIL IN CAR TRACK WAR

Meeting Friday Will Decide Whether Trolley Company Shall Obey Ordinance

A special meeting of the general council has been called by Mayor Woodard for Friday afternoon in an effort to bring about an adjustment of the differences between the city and the Georgia Railway and Power Company over the latter's refusal to comply with the provisions of the ordinance requiring a concrete foundation under street car tracks where new permanent pavement is laid.

Many members of council took the position Friday that the city should use every effort to force the company to comply with the concrete foundation ordinance, and they commended the action of Karl Brittain, assistant chief of construction, in closing Grant street to the company when it refused to put concrete under the tracks there.

Council will follow, most likely, the advice of City Attorney James L. Mayson, who refused to discuss the question before the meeting.

The situation is proving doubly interesting because the course followed in regard to Grant street will most likely be the course pursued in regard to Ponce de Leon avenue, and probably Gordon street and the other thoroughfares to be paved.

In other words, if council seeks to have declared void the company franchise on the three blocks of Grant street, where it now backs track, the same steps would most likely follow a refusal of the power company to comply with the ordinance when the Ponce de Leon avenue and the Gordon street work was begun.

An effort will be made by the seventh ward delegation, as the result of the request of property owners, to exempt the power company from compliance with the ordinance on Gordon street.

The same course will probably not be followed by the fifth ward delegation on the Ponce de Leon pavement. Alderman Edgar Dunlap asked the people on Ponce de Leon for an expression and so few of them took an position on the matter that he is now disposed to take no further action, leaving the whole matter up to the construction department to proceed under the concrete and other ordinances.

The council meeting will be preceded by a meeting of the streets committee. In addition to the paving matter, Mayor Woodard will include in his call for the special session the application of the Postal Telegraph company for a permit to lay conduits under Alabama street.

The company is preparing to put underground its wires in that thoroughfare before the work of repaving the street is begun.

SAYS HUSBAND TOLD HER HE DID NOT LOVE HER

Married in March of this year, Fred F. Langenfel and wife separated a couple of months later, in May, because Mrs. Langenfel, who lives 3345 Alabama street, alleges her husband told her that he had made a mistake and did not love her.

Mrs. Langenfel's petition for divorce was filed with the clerk of the superior court Friday morning by her attorneys, Moore & Branch. The young woman charges that besides treating her cruelly, Langenfel deserted her and is now located "somewhere" in Washington, D. C.

JUVENILE COURT TAKES LITTLE THELMA GILBERT

In the absence of her mother, who was away at work, little Thelma Gilbert, aged 12, Friday morning was taken into custody by the Fulton superior court, and will be entertained at juvenile home, pending the outcome of litigation which has been instituted by Thomas D. Gilbert for the custody of the child. The little girl went copiously when Deputy Sheriff Foster Hunter took her from her home at 137 Walton street.

FORMER MAYOR GRIMES, OF COLUMBUS, IS DEAD

COLUMBUS, Ga., Aug. 27.—Chas. B. Grimes, former mayor of Columbus, and one of the city's best known and most popular citizens, was found dead in bed at his home in Wynton this morning. He had been in poor health for some time.

The coroner's jury verdict was that the "deceased" came to death by unknown causes.

MR. PATTON MAKES THIS EXCEPTION

Bessemer Druggist So Impressed With Vitalitas He Gives Out Statement

"It is not often I will permit my name to go before the public regarding a medicine," states A. E. Patton, of the widely known Patram-Patton Drug company, of Bessemer, Ala., "but in this particular case it gives me pleasure to state briefly what I know about Vitalitas."

"My ten years in the drug business has given me an opportunity to test many remedies. I have never handled a remedy that has given the satisfaction that Vitalitas has, and for the short time it has been on the market my sales have been far beyond expectation. Many of my customers have told me they consider Vitalitas the greatest remedy for sale in a drug store. I, personally, know customers who have bought Vitalitas for indigestion, stomach trouble, kidney and bladder trouble, rheumatism and minor ailments and they have reported most favorably. I gladly recommend the use of Vitalitas."

Many prominent druggists throughout the south are giving out statements for the benefit of the public regarding this wonderful earth product. "Vitalitas is free of alcohol and habit-forming drugs. It is wholesome and pure and is beyond doubt nature's greatest tonic and corrective."

See the display and sample Vitalitas at Jacob's Pharmacy, 23 Whitehall street, or write there for information. (Adv.)

AKERS RETIRES FROM BIG COTTON FIRM

After many years spent in the cotton business, James S. Akers, a member of the firm of Inman, Akers & Inman since 1884, will retire on September 2.

Chester B. Howard, who has been with the firm for many years, will become a member of it, and the firm name will be Inman, Howard & Inman.

Mr. Akers became connected with the cotton business in 1876, when the firm was founded by S. M. Inman. In 1884 he was made a member of the firm, and in 1903 the name of the firm was changed to Inman, Akers & Inman.

SOUTHERN MAKES FINE RECORD MOVING PEACHES

Operates 187 Fast Special Trains on Perfect Schedule Time

The Southern Railway company established a fine record in handling the Georgia peach crop to eastern markets during the season extending from May 27 to August 15 when it operated 187 special trains from Atlanta to Polkville, Georgia, of which 157,474, or 85.2 per cent, made perfect schedule and were delivered to connections in time to make water on the date due.

The highly perishable character of the peach makes it necessary that it be moved with the utmost dispatch and the success of the industry is to a great degree dependent on the character of the railway service to the great consuming markets of the country.

The Southern's record in handling this heavy extraordinary traffic was accomplished without interference with the regular traffic over the 615 miles of the Atlanta-Virginian line, over 100 miles of which is undergoing double tracking and extension.

For the movement of peaches to western markets, thirty-five special trains were run from Atlanta to Chattanooga, handling 219 cars, all of which moved on perfect schedule.

Off for Auto Trip

J. N. McEachern, well known insurance man of Atlanta, left Friday with his family for an automobile trip through central and southern cities. The party will visit Louisville, Memphis, Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Asheville and many other points. At Asheville Mr. McEachern will attend the Southern Casualty convention which opens there September 9. They will return to Atlanta September 15.

NEW CALENDAR ADOPTED FOR SCHOOL VACATIONS

To Weeks at Christmas and One Week in April

Under the calendar adopted Thursday by the board of education, Atlanta school children get more holidays during the coming 1915-16 term than they have ever had before.

School will open September 13. The first quarter of nine weeks ends November 12. The second quarter begins November 15 and closes January 23 and during this time the schools will be closed for Christmas holidays from December 17 to January 2. Heretofore the schools have not closed for Christmas holidays until the Friday before the 25th, giving the children only about ten days instead of two weeks.

The third quarter begins January 31 and ends March 21. The fourth and last quarter begins April 2 and ends June 5, but there will be a spring vacation from April 21 to April 30, inclusive.

Children who were regularly promoted will then have the usual long summer vacation until school opens September 13, 1916. The vacation schools for children who were not promoted or others who wish to study during the summer, begin June 18 and end August 18. Summer school pupils and summer school teachers will have from June 9 to June 19 for a vacation and from August 18 to September 11.

More Breathing Space.

"It just splits up the vacation time and gives everybody more frequent breathing space," said Superintendent Landrum, in explaining the new calendar. "The vacation idea was in vogue years ago, when the schools were dismissed for a week during the first of May. The new calendar gives a little time away from actual study and will do away with the long grind which is always so hard on children and teachers."

Every school but the English Commercial High school will open September 13. The English Commercial school will not open until the new building on Pryor street is completed. This may not be until November. Whenever the school opens, time lost from the first half of the year will be made up by extending the spring session a few weeks.

Changes in the high schools were recommended by W. F. Dyke, superintendent of high schools by the board of education to the committee of the board. The chief of these is that pupils who have attained an average of 75 per cent in all studies throughout the year shall be exempted from final examinations.

The board received the report of Superintendent Landrum that sixty-four new school rooms are in construction so that the necessity of double sessions will be eliminated this year.

The board voted to change the name of Bell Street school to Taylor school and use it for colored children this year.

NEW TEACHERS ELECTED.

The following new teachers were placed in nomination by the superintendent Thursday and elected by the board:

Tech High School—C. M. Stodgill, associate science teacher, group 1; H. G. Green, associate shop and drawing teacher, group 1.

Commercial High School—C. E. Betts, associate English and mathematics teacher, group 2; E. E. Crawford, associate language teacher, group 2.

Boys' High—A clerk for Boys' High and one for Tech High.

Assistant Principals—Miss Mary K. Crawford, Miss Gussie Carr, Mrs. Julia Gardner, Miss Julia Bellinger and Mrs. I. C. Case.

Grammar Schools, Grade Teachers—Group 2, Miss Ray Mitchell, Mrs. Elita M. Creasap, Miss Pearl Wheat, Miss Lucy L. Allen, Miss Birdie Thrasher, Miss Frances B. Johnson, Miss Annie Armstrong, Miss Adelaide Christian, Miss Charlotte Underwood and Miss Hattie May Carmichael.

Group 3—Miss Nancy May Williams, Mrs. Emma Parker, Mrs. Hattie K. Gilliland, Miss Bertha Wood, Miss Annie Thornton Spence.

Group 1—Miss May Robinson, Miss Louise Quarterman, Miss Catherine Wright, Miss Adelaide Ward, Mrs. R. L. Saxon.

Group 4—Mrs. Pauline Ballard.

Superintendents—Miss Annie Laura Garner, Miss Lida Sue Brown, Miss Meg Stephenson, Miss Nena White, Miss Catherine Colley, Miss Leone Smith, Miss Lovina Vinson, Miss Florence DeLoach, Miss George Crump, Miss Genie Small Mitchell, Miss Willibelle Anthony, Miss Waverly Henson, Miss Mary Bowen, Miss Frances Hunter, Miss Blanche Armistead and Miss Lemmie Sims.

Misses Eddie Lou Simmons and Annie Zuber were each granted a year's leave of absence.

Dr. George S. Morse was named physician for the colored schools and Charity Collins nurse. The election of a superintendent for the new negro night school was deferred.

The board instructed its finance committee to ask general council for an appropriation to widen the scope of the summer normal school so as to bring prominent instructors here and make Atlanta a summer educational center where teachers in every part of the school system may study.

EVIDENCE FURNISHED BY DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE

An Officer of the Army Makes an Interesting Statement

The accompanying photo is of Miss Pearl Brown, who is one of the army of 200,000 ex-students that you read about in The Journal a few days ago. Read what she says about Draughon's Business College:

"When I decided to take a business course, I was at a loss to know where to enroll, but on investigation I readily decided on Draughon's. On the completion of my course, the college secured me a position as stenographer with the National Life Association, Atlanta, at an attractive salary, and I have since been made Secretary and Treasurer. I give Draughon's College credit for many calls now on office help, and next winter the demand is going to be greater than the supply, judging from the present indications. Lose no time in preparing for a good position. Join the Draughon Army now if you wish to command a position in the commercial world that really amounts to something. Day and night school. Catalog free. Address: H. R. Todd, Supt. Draughon's Business College, Atlanta, Ga., and Montgomery, Ala. (Adv.)

NEAR-FIGHT IN BOARD OF EDUCATION MEETING

Alderman Armistead and Walter Fudge Clash Over School Geographies

A final effort to induce the board of education to rescind its action in changing geographies in two grades of the public schools was made in an afternoon, and its only result was a near-fight between Alderman Jesse W. Armistead, of the board, and Walter Fudge, one of several labor union men who want to see the board recently in an attempt to restrain the board from making the change.

No blows were struck in the disturbance, which occurred just outside of the room where the board was meeting, and the only casualty reported is an injury to the thumb of George F. Eubanks, eighth ward member of the board, who was acting in the role of peacemaker.

Mr. Fudge and Luther H. Still appeared before the board to plead that the board reconsider its action in changing the geographies used in two grades of the school from the Frye to the Farr & McMurphy geography. Mr. Still first made a very lengthy talk in favor of the Frye book.

Then Mr. Fudge took the floor, and said: "What do you think of a board member who will offer to pay a man to withdraw his name from the injunction petition?"

Major R. J. Guinn, president of the board, told the speaker that he must be more specific.

"I refer to Mr. Armistead," Mr. Fudge answered. "He told one of the signers that he would pay him $25 to withdraw his name and to get Earle Briggs, another signer, to withdraw his name."

Mr. Armistead asked if it were not true that he had simply told Luther Still that if he would withdraw his name and get the others to do the same, he would be glad to pay him $25 for the time he lost from work in handling the matter, and if he had not explained at the time, that he wanted to get the names of union men off the injunction petition because a certain sheet had attacked him because of union differences.

Mr. Still answered the question instead of Mr. Fudge, admitting that the statement was true, but adding that Mr. Armistead further told him that there was some animosity between himself and the chairman of the board (Major Guinn) and that he had won this geography fight and wanted to stay in.

It then looked as if the incident was closed. The board members heard letters from several people protesting the change, and then voted not to reconsider the previous action.

Mr. Fudge and Mr. Still left the chamber of commerce hall, where the meeting was held, and they were followed out by Alderman Armistead, with Mr. Eubanks close behind. Just outside the door Alderman Armistead, without speaking, rushed at Mr. Fudge. Mr. Eubanks grabbed him and Mr. Still grabbed Mr. Fudge, pulling him towards the steps. Mr. Eubanks in holding Alderman Armistead in name was getting his hand jammed in the door. He finally got Alderman Armistead back into the room where the board was meeting and Mr. Still and Mr. Fudge left the building.

The failure of the board to rescind its action in the matter of the geographies used in two grades of the school has been in progress for about two months. First, Still, Fudge, Briggs et al., who to the board seemed to be in charge, which was denied them. Then the city council passed its action. Although the board made the change by a vote of only 6 to 5 it sustained its first action Thursday afternoon by a vote of 10 to 1.

A motion by Alderman Armistead was adopted by the board, accepting the book from the Southern School Book Depository, agreeing to furnish the books to the city of Atlanta at the following prices: First book at 55 cents, second book at 41 cents.

LA GRANGE GRAPHIC IS CREDITED WITH STORY

In a recent issue of The Journal's Sunday magazine section there appeared a short item telling that there was a quack chicken in LaGrange, Ga., a chicken which is neither entirely rooster nor wholly hen, yet is a little of both. The Journal described "The Reporter" as the birthplace of this news. This was an error. The news was first printed in "The LaGrange Graphic," of which J. B. Daniel is owner and manager and S. G. Woodall is editor. The Journal gladly makes this correction.

DRUGMEN TO CO-OPERATE TO ENFORCE DOPE LAW

Will Hold Conference Friday With District Attorney and His Aids

For the purpose of adopting means to co-operate more closely with the United States government in its anti-drug campaign under the new Harrison act, the retail druggists of Atlanta and of neighboring towns will meet Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce building.

This meeting was called by David G. Wise, president of the Atlanta Retail Druggists' association. Druggists and government officials will speak, including Dr. W. S. Elkin, Jr., District Attorney Hooper Alexander, D. J. Gantt, revenue agent; L. L. Fronberger, special agent, and A. O. Blacklock, collector of internal revenue.

The proper enforcement of the anti-drug law, which prohibits druggists from selling narcotics of opiates without the prescription of a reputable physician, is the main object of the meeting, which is being held at the Chamber of Commerce building. It was pointed out by a government agent, and the co-operation of these druggists will mean much to Atlanta in helping rid the city of drug fiends.

Dr. Elkin, in speaking of the meeting, said that there were 3,000 drug addicts in and near Atlanta. He stressed the necessity of a hospital for the cure of these people, and urged the help of all druggists to eliminate the sale of drugs that turn normal people into addicts.

FEDERATION OPPOSED TO PROHIBITION IN CALL

Resolutions by the Atlanta Federation of Trades urging Governor Harris not to include prohibition in his call for an extra session were carried to the governor's office Friday by a committee of the federation. The resolutions were adopted at a meeting Thursday night. It is the unanimous opinion of the Atlanta Federation of Trades that we have already had too much action upon this one question for one year at least, to the detriment of very important questions of our interest to the people of Georgia, both organized and unorganized, the resolutions read.

Louis P. Marquardt, president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, addressed the meeting. He spoke strongly for the passage of the resolutions.

RINGWORM ON GIRL'S HEAD

Thick Scale Like Dandruff. Would Scratch. Hair Came Out. In Five Weeks Well.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little girl had ringworm on the back of her head which kept getting larger and larger. Her head was dry with a thick scale like dandruff, and when I would wash it in soap it would red. She would scratch her head until blood would come. Her hair came out in two places the size of a silver dollar."

"I painted it with Cuticura and used sulphur in different ways but with no relief."

She had the ringworm about six months before I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used them according to directions and in two weeks it began to heal up, and in five weeks she was entirely well." (Signed) Mrs. L. E. Teague, 22 Cooper St., Charleston, S. C., March 10, 1915.

Yes; S. S. S. is Purely Vegetable

Nature's Safe Blood Treatment

Known for 50 Years As The Best Remedy for Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Skin Diseases.

Scientists have discovered that the forest and the field, are abundantly supplied with vegetation of various kinds, that furnish the ingredients for making a remedy, for practically every ailment of mankind. Medicines made from roots, herbs, and barks which Nature has placed in the disposal of man, are better than strong mineral mixtures and concoctions. Mineral medicines work dangerously on the delicate parts of the system, especially the stomach and bowels, by eating out the lining membrane, producing chronic dyspepsia and often entirely ruining the health.

S. S. S. is guaranteed to be a purely vegetable remedy. It is made entirely of gentle-acting, healing, purifying roots, herbs and barks, possessing properties that build up all parts of the system, in addition to removing all impurities and poisons from the blood. S. S. S. is a safe treatment for Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, and all disorders of the blood. It cleanses the entire system and it's permanent. TODAY'S EVENING STORY

THE BLUE PLATE

(Copyright, 1915, by W. Werner.)

(Copyright, 1915, by W. Werner.)
It was an heirloom, that royal blue plate with its bizarre border of queer little coves and trees. Also it was a relic and a souvenir and hence very precious to Genevieve. A great-niece of some royal duke or general or some noted person—Genevieve herself was a bit hazy about the point—had given it to a great-uncle of Genevieve's grandmother, who had bequeathed it to Genevieve with instructions to be very, very careful of it and hand it down intact to future generations.

Genevieve had always felt that her grandmother had greatly honored her. Several girl cousins had been bitterly envious. Which naturally enhanced the plate in Genevieve's eyes.
Before she was married she kept it in her trunk; in a compartment all to itself, where she insured safety by wadding upon wadding of tissue paper. She had a younger brother who was careless and so no place but the interior of that trunk, which she kept in her closet, was remote enough to contain that plate.

But, of course, as soon as she and Cort were married it was brought out and put on the sideboard. Cort admitted it—after Genevieve told him its history. But he advised her to put it back in the safer trunk. "I don't feel any in the same room," he joked, one day about Genevieve's aim organized waist. "Suppose I break it—I'm a little awkward—always was. And I'm as awkward when I'm trying not to be. I broke my mother's cut glass punch bowl and nearly had to leave home. I broke my father's shaving mug."

Genevieve laughed. "What is the use of getting married if you can't show off your valuable heirlooms?" she demanded. "I believe that's all you married me for," opined Cort thoughtfully. "To get a fat that would have a sideboard that would hold that plate."

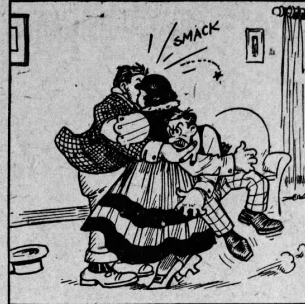

Genevieve laughed and leaned closer within his arm while she gazed admiringly at the blue plate, flanked on one side by a rococo stein and on the other by a cut glass nappy.
For a long time the plate was not disturbed, except when Genevieve's brother came for dinner. Then she hastily removed it from public view, to her husband's great amusement.

"What would you do, Gen?" Cort teased. "If some time you forgot to put it away and he broke it?"
Genevieve's lips compressed in an angry, hard line. "He'd never be brother of mine after he did it," she said determinedly. "He'd never eat dinner here again."
Cort laughed, but he uneasily took another step from the sideboard. "Suppose I broke it?" Genevieve asked. "Wouldn't you ever have me here again for dinner?"
"You won't break it," she replied confidently. "You're always too careful."
"Knock on wood," he advised her earnestly.
She knocked idly. "Silly!"
A few days later she was much incensed. Mrs. Groney, a young matron who had been in her class at school, called and she said sweetly: "I see you've got one of those dear, queer plates that the if-est store has been showing. Aren't they sweet? I got a breakfast set."

Genevieve sat up haughtily. Then she explained the difference between modern blue landscape plates and valuable old heirlooms.
She indignantly told Cort that night. He thought it was funny, but he discreetly suppressed his amusement when Genevieve told it coldly.
And the next day he broke it; just a small bit chipped from the edge as he reached for a package that he had laid on the sideboard, and somehow knocked the gaudy stein against it.
Horried, he turned to meet Genevieve's eyes. She jumped from the table where she was dallying over the evening paper and her pudding.
"What was that?" breathlessly. "Not a word!"
Cort glumly held it toward her. "Gen, I don't know how I did it. Good heavens, I've tried to be so blamed careful!"
"O-oh!"—Genevieve clasped the plate to her breast and began to cry. Her husband guiltily watched her. Presently she wiped her eyes and put the plate back. "You couldn't help it, of course," she remarked in a dull, cold tone that made Cort writhe. Nothing was said, but the evening was the forerunner of a series of cloudbursts. Cort found himself wishing that she had taken it out in one good spell of wrath; this cold forgiveness set his nerve on edge.
When Genevieve's brother dined with them the plate was left on the sideboard; no more need to be careful of it. Cort writhed again. He felt intolerably guilty.

Little by little he began to cultivate a sense of injury. Darn it all, Genevieve couldn't think very much of him or she wouldn't put a plate first. Somehow his feeling of injury increased the glumness and constraint.
The plate, with the nick carefully put down so that a tray hid it, seemed to mock it. And it certainly kept itself constantly in his mind. At the table his seat faced it. Gen sat with her back to it, but, of course, she could see the blue reflection in the mirror of the sideboard. Sometimes when Cort was looking at the plate he met Gen's glance in the mirror behind it. Both hastily looked elsewhere and talk languished.
"If I could buy another," he suggested tentatively, one night. Gen shook her head. There is no

Cort gloomed behind the newspaper. Her tone was truly forgiving. He wished the Atlantic ocean. He wished Gen—well, he wished a lot of things. And the next evening he sat down town and played pool. Genevieve's brother saw him and later told Gen, who cried herself to sleep when she heard it. The next morning served breakfast in cold silence.
Cort didn't care. He had got to the point when he didn't care much for anything. The plate was a blue stain. He glared at it as he went out—then his eyelids drooped in embarrassment. In the mirror over it he met Genevieve's wide glance.

That night he lagged home to dinner, wishing the meal was over. Genevieve was the same as usual, forcedly polite. But the dinner was unusually good—creamed new potatoes and a roast that their limited income didn't allow every time. Genevieve was unusually good—she had learned it at cooking school.
Cort ate with appetite. When he had finished his tea, Genevieve rose to get a bowl of nuts on the sideboard. Cort didn't offer to get them for her. He had never touched anything on the sideboard since a certain night. Now he watched her wistfully. The dinner was good, but he wished it had been poorer, and he as before that confounded blue plate cracked their happiness in two. He wished—

There was a crash. He jumped up. Genevieve turned to face him, her hands at her sides, her eyes big. The plate lay in a jagged heap of pieces, and the stein was a brown and black heap of fragments, beside it. "I broke the plate," said Gen in a low, strange voice.

"Gen?" Cort cried in sympathy. "That's a shame—can we mend it—fix it together?"
She swept the fragments to one side and got the bowl of nuts. There was a certain indifference in her mien that puzzled Cort.
"I don't think so," she said carelessly. "Let me try," he urged, picking up the pieces.
She took it out of his hand. Her cheeks were red. "Don't try. Because—because—I broke it purposely. I hate the old blue thing—it has made more trouble for me—you darn't care for me—any more—"
Gen was half crying. Cort kissed her with a vim unknown for months. Then he gathered up the blue pieces of china and took them out to the garbage can. "Thank heaven!" he said, as he emptied them.

A Suggestion
A woman got on a crowded street car with an infant in her arms. The child screamed for ten minutes, much to the annoyance of the rest of the passengers.
"Oh, dear!" finally exclaimed the mother nervously, "what shall I do with this child?"
A crusty old bachelor seated across from her got up.
"Shall I open the window for you, madam?" he asked.

New School Clothes for Girls

The New Middies Are Here

Here they are—the new Middies!

All good middy styles—long sleeves, laced and the new buttoned front, side lacings, pockets, collars braided and embroidered in middy emblems.

White percale and galatea, with collars of navy, Copenhagen and red. These colors are guaranteed to be absolutely fast. If you find one that fades, or runs, we'll give you a new Middy.

Also solid blue navy blue Middies.

Very good-looking these are, and just in time for the opening of school.

Come in tomorrow, before the best styles are gone.

A Great Special Purchase of Beautiful UndermuslinsIn Which We Have Provided for Girls Going Away to School

The first fruits of our last trip to market. We found a special lot of the most temptingly beautiful Muslins, which we immediately took possession of and have brought home for special selling Saturday

at Prices Truly Amazing

They are chiefly for girls going away to school and who are already thinking of garments for the trunk soon to be packed.

We have never offered you such an opportunity to save on dainty, lovely garments.

For instance:

Pure Linen Teddy Combinations at $1.25

They are $2.50 value.

The daintiest garments imaginable! Made of genuine linen and prettily trimmed with narrow linen lace, beading and ribbon—or fine embroidery. We could only get a few of these at this price, and they will not tarry long—you may be sure.

A Sample Lot of
Teddy Combinations—
Wonderful at $1.00

Dainty garments, made of soft nainsook and trimmed in various ways with laces or embroideries, Swiss medallions, etc. The skirt is also trimmed.

Sample Corset Covers
Value to $1.00 at 59c

These are particularly dainty, pretty garments, and there are dozens of styles to choose from. They are variously trimmed with narrow embroidery, wee tucks, bias stitching, medallions, etc. Girls will buy them by the half dozen—owing to their good value.

Drawers, Special at 50c

They were chosen especially for school girls, and are decidedly dainty, good garments. Three materials: Cambric, muslin, nainsook; both straight and circular styles; prettily trimmed with laces of good, strong embroidery edge.

$1.00 and $1.25
Petticoats at 59c

Good Petticoats in a score or more of good styles; lace or embroidery trimmed. Just about half their regular price.

Other pretty and very choice Corset Covers, in great assortment of styles, which we are offering in this sale at $1.00, $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00. A part of the special purchase and really wonderful values at these prices.

Notice to Charge Customers

All goods bought Saturday and thereafter will be charged on your September account.

Gowns—All Specially Priced

We believe you will agree with us they are wonderful at the prices asked for them.

They are Sample Gowns which we were fortunate enough to get in this Special Purchase.

Three lots:

Gowns at 79c

High or V-neck Gowns, with long sleeves for winter, made of good muslin or cambric, prettily trimmed.

Gowns at $1.00

Beautiful Gowns, all lace and dainty with medallions, laces, ribbons, etc.

Gowns at $1.98

Irresistibly pretty garments, very elaborately trimmed, in various ways; fine, soft materials and laces, ribbons, etc.

Some $1.00 and $1.25
Garments at 79c

These are not included in the Special Purchase lot of Muslins. They are from our regular stock and are greatly reduced because they are slightly soiled.

$1.00 and $1.25 Gowns at 79c.

$1.00 and $1.25 Teddy Combinations at 79c.

Racquet Stars In Semi-Final Matches
SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 27.—The first round of the doubles tennis tournament at the Meadow club today was won by the New York and Washington, D. C., teams of J. Pell, of New York, and W. M. Johnston, of San Francisco, won their bracket in the semi-final round of the cup starting here Thursday in the Meadow club tournament.

The most spectacular victory was that of the New York duo, who, in swiftly played rallies, defeated George M. Church, of Princeton captain, and W. C. Canner, of Philadelphia, the Harvard player, to win.

Ward Dawson and H. A. Throckmorton, the partnership of the Los Angeles man and the eastern schoolboy, won the consolation match of the doubles.

Clarence J. Griffin and William M. Johnston, the Pacific coast challengers for the national doubles title, also came through.

INVESTMENT AT HOME
—A WAR-TIME LESSON
By JOHN M. OSKINON.

American owners of money are urged, with clear logic, to use their resources to acquire the good bonds and stocks of American railroad and industrial corporations which have been

Let us, urge the clear-seeing economists, make extra efforts to save and back these securities. Our income thereby be increased, and our investments made more safe. We may very well take warning from the present experience of Holland.

There is a thrifty and enterprising people. They own many millions of bonds and stocks of other govern-

... and foreign corporations. Suppose a Dutch holder of German, French, Austrian, or Italian bonds, or the bonds of corporations doing business in those countries, has to sell. What are his chances of getting out without a loss?

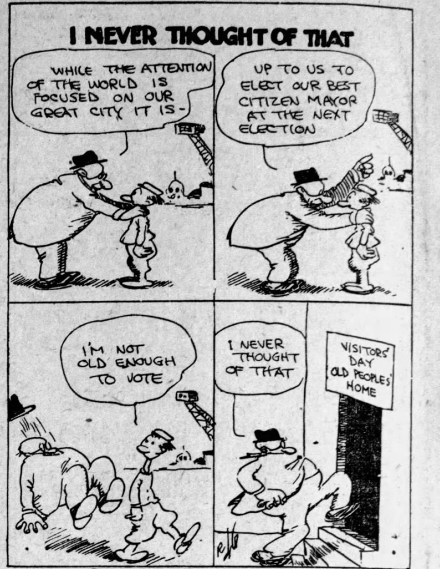

"They are nil!

"In the first place, it would be very difficult to find a buyer in any of these countries, for exchanges are closed, and governments are alert to prevent sales which are likely to take any real becoming world investors Americans will remember that in the times of crises the people who are their securities are released from many of the ordinary obligations concerning money securities.

But suppose the Dutch holder of a first-class German bond did find a buyer who offered a good price: Shall the price be paid in German marks? No, the Dutch holder accepts a loss of 15 per cent at once, since German money is at that discount. French francs are at a 5 per cent discount; Italian lire at a discount of 15 per cent. If the holder has Belgian francs, Austrian crowns or any other money, he must accept a loss worth only 75 per cent of their nominal value, and the same 25 per cent discount prevails for Russian rubles.
